TEDTalks

ON TUESDAYS

We may not be as deeply divided as we think—at least when it comes to health, Rebecca Onie, health innovator, says. In a talk that cuts through the noise, Onie shares research that shows how, even across economic, political and racial divides, Americans agree on what they need to live good lives, and asks both health care providers and patients to focus on what makes us healthy, not what makes us angry. Bring your lunch and join us for the discussion. Coffee and cookies provided.

Free and open to the public. No reservations required.

Fr. James Bacik Lecture Series

Bridging the Catholic Conservative-Liberal Divide: Christian Perspectives

Thursday, September 12, 2019 ♦ 5:30 p.m.—7:00 p.m.

Franciscan Center / 6832 Convent Blvd.

This lecture will examine the differences between Catholics who think of themselves as more conservative or more liberal by considering the diverse ways that Pope John Paul II and Pope Francis have interpreted the Second Vatican Council. It will draw on fundamental teachings of Christ to show how all Catholics can find common ground.

Cost: $10 preregistered; $15 at the door. To reserve tickets email franciscanvillage@sistersosf.org or call 419-824-3515.

Encountering Jesus in Story and Silence

Saturday, September 28, 2019 ◊ 10 a.m.—Noon
Regina Conference Room / 6832 Convent Blvd.

Take a journey with the early disciples of Jesus who listened to his stories and observed him in his silence and prayer. Place yourself in the close circle of Jesus' friends and allow his words and his silence to move your heart and transform your life. Participants will enter into the moments when Jesus first told his stories, and experience the awe and wonder of hearing his message of the Kingdom.

Presented by Sister Shannon Schrein, OSF, a Sylvania Franciscan for 52 years. Sister Schrein earned her Doctorate in Systematic Theology from Marquette University, a Masters in Theology from the University of Dayton, and is the immediate past president of the College Theology Society.

Cost: $20.

For more information or to register, contact: Sr. Joan Jurski at 419-824-3528 or jjurski@sistersosf.org
